THE FUTURE OF NURSING : AIIMS NORCET

Dear Students,

The wait is over for the AIIMS Nursing Officer Recruitment Common Eligibility Test 2021 (NORCET), and finally, the exam is planned to be conducted on 20th November 2021. As usual, AIIMS planned to conduct NORCET in 30 days notification and exam will be having 80:20 Ratio and new age relaxation changes. There is only a short duration for exams that decides your life. Future vacancies of all AIIMS & Delhi Central Govt. Hospitals will be filled basis on NORCET merit till the next AIIMS NORCET 2022.

Last year, AIIMS Delhi conducted NORCET 2020 soon after the Covid pandemic curfew with a one-month notification. We conducted 15 days online AIIMS NORCET Prep Course. More than 71 people got the final seat allotted Out of 117 people who attended the course.

If you ask any topper about their secret of success, you'll find one common answer. And that is - Revision.

Revision is key to success. As if you have not revised the topics, you won't be able to recall them in the exam, and there will be a very high probability of getting confused and marking an incorrect answer.

Strategy to Prepare AIIMS NORCET?

There is no age, stature or economic condition to dream. Now every nursing aspirant has seen a dream. The dream to crack the most challenging nursing recruitment of India! That is AIIMS NORCET. If you know to break NORCET, mostly you can crack any other competitive nursing like NIMHANS and JIPMER etc.

Before we discuss the approach to the exam, you need to ask a fundamental question yourself: What exactly is your expectation from this exam? Do you consider this to be very easy? Or do you think that there is a shortcut success mantra that can be handed over to you?

Just imagine, had there been a shortcut to success, then everyone appearing for the NORCET exam would have taken that route and qualified for the exam.

It is a fact that the exam does not differentiate between a working professional or a candidate who is dedicatedly preparing for it. The only thing which matters is how prepared you are on the day of the exam.

Since you are working, you are not left with a lot of time invested in your studies. So, the primary question is, what kind of strategy should be followed?

Well, to form a strategy, we need to get the basics right. Broadly there are, three critical aspects of preparations

1. Coverage of Nursing Concepts
2. Basic knowledge of current affairs and aptitude
3. Practice mock test with an explanation

Sure Success Mantra

Coverage of Nursing Subjects:

Nursing concepts account for almost 80% of your syllabus as far as content is concerned. You need to study the static portion from the very basics. Understanding static nursing content is vital because of two reasons. Firstly, many questions are asked directly in the exam from the fixed portion, and secondly, they are essential to understand new topic questions and current affairs.

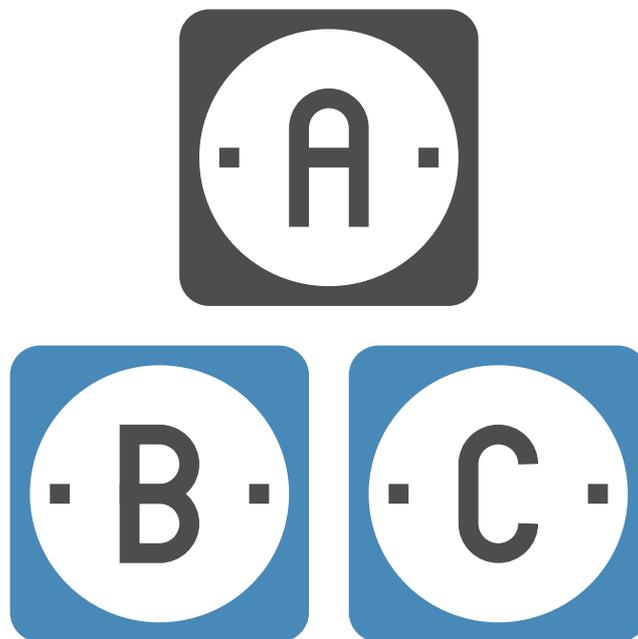

Hence, it is crucial that you need to keep a time slot for static nursing subjects every day. Make a plan according to the syllabus and give at least 3 hours for foundation subjects contents. You mustn't jump the topics every day and give at least four days to one issue, then pick one.

Don't try to finish the entire subject in one go on your own because you will lose touch with the subject once you start another topic. For example, don't think you will finish medical surgical nursing in 10 days and begin with mental health nursing another five days. This way, by the time you finish the second or third subject, you will forget the first one. Keep mixing it up. You can divide one topic into 3 to 4 parts and give an equal interval to finish them.

Basic knowledge of current affairs:

Knowing recent current affairs is the most confusing aspect of the preparation as nursing students don't know what is essential and what to read. Moreover, it seems never-ending as there are so many sources and many bulky books in the market.

As a working professional nurse, you don't have much time to read several newspapers every day and make your notes. Hence, for you, the best way is to stick with one source. We recommend you to go through content subject faculty delivering.

Practice mock tests and explanations:

Mock tests make or break section of nursing preparation. If you have done adequate content preparation, not doing practice tests, there is a high chance of making a silly mistake. Reviewing your test is also very important; otherwise, you will just roam over questions. There are so many bulky question compilations and YouTube & Telegram channels that may waste your precious time.

So, you must select proper tests regularly for each subject with negative marking. Use weekends for the additional question and answer revision for that. Our Metier team delivers free and paid courses.

But why are we stating the obvious? Well, just because something is obvious doesn't mean everyone follows it. It is a good idea to prepare after all! But on average, how many people do preparations? You know the answer. As teachers, we should keep reminding you of the obvious. If you are failing to practice, you are essentially practising to fall in the exam.

Its very fact that only a handful of candidates can commit wholeheartedly to the competitive nursing preparations tells us that it is not easy. Doing the exact content & new tests requires perseverance, a virtue not everyone possesses. If you are one of those nursing aspirants who are willing to commit to this preparation process and devote time and energy with utmost honesty, then there is no way that success can elude you.

Are you ready to commit? If yes, we are here for you. We present our latest versions of AIIMS NORCET PREP COURSE 2021 as below.
